Please share three to four brief paragraphs about yourself. Remember to include the following Professional experience and history, about you and your family, where you were born, hobbies, interests.

John Lavey is the Director of Strategic Marketing for Morrison-Maierle, a multi-disciplinary professional services consulting firm headquartered in Helena, Montana. John is based in Morrison-Maierle's Missoula office where he oversees the firm's corporate marketing activities and many of the firm's business development efforts.

John is a former land use planner and the former director of the Ravalli County Planning Department where he started his career. He then worked for a stint with the Sonoran Institute, a conservation-focused non-profit working to integrate land use planning into conservation efforts. From there, he co-founded Community Builders, a non-profit working at the intersection of land use planning and economic development, where he served as the Communications Director and Program Manager.

John is married to Jenny and they have two boys, Wesley (6) and Samuel (9). Born and raised in Boise, Idaho, John and the Lavey clan enjoy spending time outdoors camping, rafting, hiking, and spending as much time at the family lake cabin as possible. When he's not working or spending quality time with the family, John enjoys playing the guitar and writing original music.
